ATTELL'S RECORD.

Attell has certainly made a grand record and is now recognized as one of the foremost fighters of his class in the world. He is not, however, the style of fighter that pleases an audience, be-cause he acts a great deal on the deensive. instead of the aggressive. Fight followers want to see the man that car-ries the battle to his opponent. That style is the popular fighter of the day.

Yale begins Sept. 28, playing Trinity, on Yale Field. From that point on the season will be fairly started.

The new rules are not at all to Yale's liking—that is, to the liking of the recent Yale Players who have helped bring Yale's peculiar style of playing the peculiar sty West Point and Annapolis do not Yale's peculiar style of play to the stand-So notable are the changes made in the rules that it will be necessary for Yale to try an almost entirely new system play in the middle of the field, which is a disadvantage that some of the smaller colleges that have been playing a more open game have not to face.

It will be a matter of experiment fo several weeks at Yale this fall to bring the game around to the new system of play.

This was in the eleventh round; it had looked up to that time as though Miller had been getting a shade the better of it. He had many backers last night, who thought he would certainly put Farren out.

Farren's punches lacked force. Miller lit harder than Farren, but the Englishman had a nice, effective way of protecting himself. He blocked and ducked cleverly and was right there with the best returns he had in the shop when Miller led his hard punches.

Had Farren not been able to protect himself well he would have been put out by tiese swings. Both men were very tired from the twelfth round.
